Brent Efford, Environmental Sustainability Representative, Wellington Regional Land Transport Committee

Electrical Multiple Units (EMUs)

Mr Efford referred to Report 05.10 paragraph 3.2 New EMUs in today's agenda and said it was encouraging that level boarding with the new rolling stock has been recognized. Not only will platform heights have to be adjusted, but also curved platforms will have to be eliminated.

Level boarding will be a patronage booster, very attractive for parents with trams, cyclists, those who walk with difficulty, shopping trundlers, and the completely able-bodied majority who can board that much quicker.

Christmas Think Sentence

Mr Efford referred to Report 05.37 paragraph 3.2 in which Dr Watson commented on the Towards Sustainable Land Transport Conference. Mr Efford said he agreed with Dr Watson that most people including politicians and business leaders have not yet "got it" regarding sustainability, and prefer to limit their horizons to business as usual in the short term.

A copy of Mr Efford's representations was circulated.

Ian Gaskin, Black and White Taxis

Mr Gaskin said he was concerned about the welfare of taxi drivers and bus drivers who were required to work long hours. Mr Gaskin said he had therefore decided to start a gymnasium and social club on spare land at the back of his office to assist drivers in keeping healthy during their work.

Mr Gaskin said he would be applying for community funding and asked Greater Wellington to provide a letter of endorsement for his proposal. Mr Gaskin said this would assist in his community funding application.
